

Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela

Communiqué

The President of the Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela, Nicolas Maduro Moros, on behalf of the Venezuelan People commemorates along with the Bolivian People the 236th anniversary of the passing of great indigenous leader Tupac Katari, who was a distinguished example of courage and dedicated his life to the fights against the colonial oppression of the Spanish empire.

The Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela honors the heritage of this great revolutionary man who has served as an inspiration in the struggles of the peoples of Our America for their freedom. It is not superfluous to say that every cruel and inhuman attempt to erase from history the heritage of resistance left by Tupac Katari in Abya Yala was in vain.

The Venezuelan People proudly highlights the historical motto of Tupac Katari: "Today I die, but one day I will be back and become millions". The prophetic sense of this phrase comes into force thanks to the revolutionary processes carried out today in our countries, as recognized by our Eternal Commander, Hugo Chavez: "We have become millions and nothing and no one can stop the great South American, Latin American and Caribbean revolution".

The Government of the Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela reiterates its most fervent willingness to continue strengthening our bonds of friendship and cooperation with the brotherly Plurinational State of Bolivia.
